

The background is a dark green, textured surface. On the left side, there is a large, stylized geometric pattern made of overlapping diamond and chevron shapes. A horizontal band of solid green color runs across the middle of the page. At the bottom, there is another row of smaller, repeating geometric shapes.

Superintendent's Message

To the Students of Community High School:

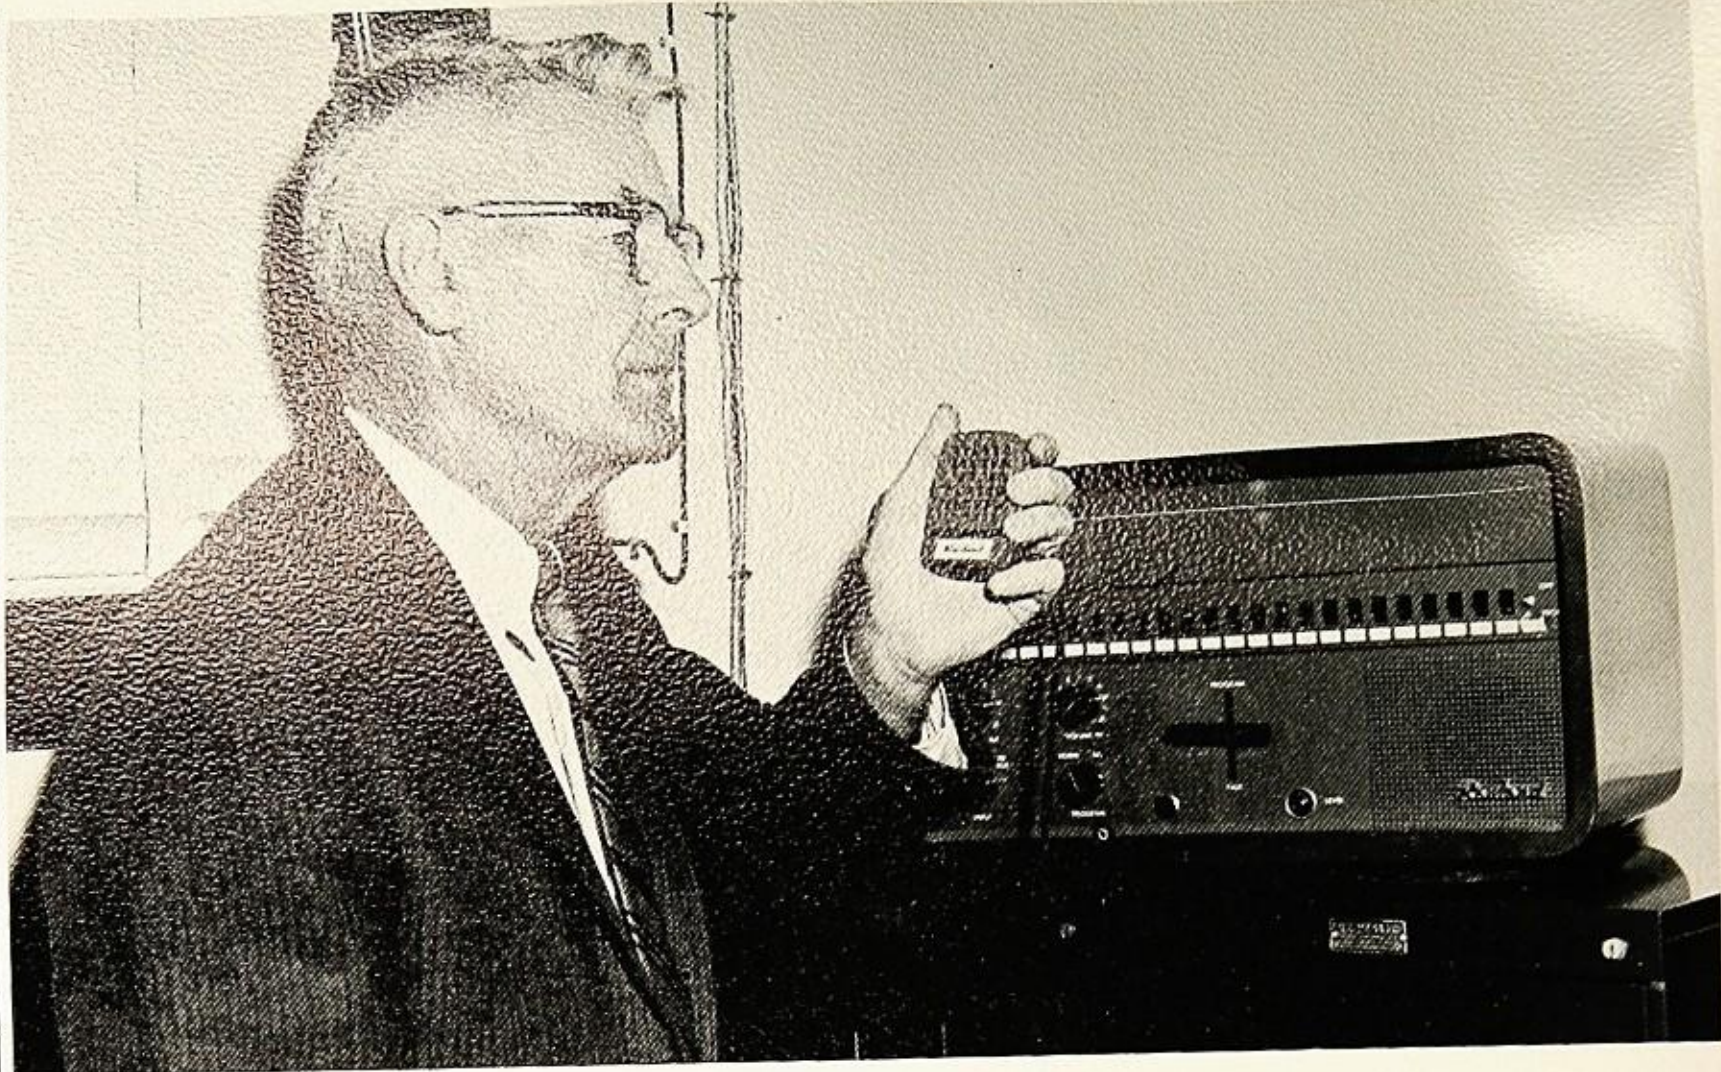

My wish for each of you is that you have developed the personal independence that will enable you to be adaptable, resourceful, and open-minded. With these built-in qualities, your life will have extraordinary meaning, not only for yourself but for those whose lives you share.

Sincerely,

Helen Womack

FACULTY

Principal's Message

To the Students of Community High School:

As we enter the space age, there is a new interest in and criticism of the public schools. Essentially the function of education today is as it has always been: to create a literate society; to improve the individual, physically, mentally, and spiritually.

Emphasis has been changed; for example, the greater emphasis on science, mathematics, and languages. Equally important are music, literature, fine and industrial arts. No society has become great on the basis of mechanics alone.

We who believe in the sacredness of the individual are convinced that effective development of human personality should be the role of education.

Sincerely,

Let us make for ourselves a treasure
chest,
But not for gems and gold--
Fill ourselves with things more rare
and fine,
As full as we can hold.

Into it place your kindly thoughts,
Of friends whom we hold dear,
The classes, the teachers,
the happy hours,
That fill our life with cheer.

Chapter 2 THE BEGINNINGS OF THE UNITED STATES

The roots of American government reach deep into the past. Our system of government did not suddenly spring into being as at the wave of some political magician's wand. Nor was it pulled out of thin air by the

Our English Heritage

The French, Spanish, Dutch, Norwegians, and other Europeans settled in parts of what was to become the United States. But it was the English who came in the largest number. And it was the English who came to control the thirteen colonies that stretched for 1,300 miles along the Atlantic sea-

These early pioneers who shared the wilderness and fought off the Indians had to look out for their own future in the New World. And they came here in search of greater freedom.

The Colonial Period

From the time of the first English settlement in 1607, the colonies grew in number and size. By 1776, there were thirteen colonies. They had their own laws, customs, and traditions. They had their own government. They had their own way of life. They had their own spirit. They had their own soul. They had their own destiny. They had their own future. They had their own hope. They had their own faith. They had their own love. They had their own life. They had their own death. They had their own everything.

SETTLERS AT WORK

Early Americans had to live together in harmony, or they would not survive. This was called "government in order to live," the beginning of our government today.

of which are to be found today—county, township, city, sheriff, justice, and justice at the peace, for example. And all of these were well known in England long before the first Englishman ever landed in America.

(2) The Two Concepts of Limited Government and Civil Liberties—They brought with them too the twin ideas of limited government and civil liberties. That is, that government is not all powerful; that government is limited in what it may do; and, therefore, that it is limited in the sense that each man has certain rights that government cannot injure or take away. These great principles of freedom were proclaimed in such historic English documents as the Magna Carta in 1215, the Petition of Right in 1628, and the Bill of Rights and the Act of Toleration of 1689.

(3) The Concept of Representative Government—A third vitally important concept brought to America in English ships was that of representative government. For centuries there had been developing in England the
